"le sacré coeur 1"

Size (HxW) : 30x40 cm

Desc. : L'église, construite après un vœu de Mgr Leynaud en 1944[1], fut élevée au rang de cathédrale en décembre 1962 et consacrée en 1966[2]. Architecture [modifier] Les concepteurs de l'édifice, Paul Herbé et Jean Le Couteur, se sont inspirés de l' Evangile selon Jean : "Dieu a planté sa tente parmi nous". L'effet en est rendu par cette coupole élancée s'élevant à 35 mètres au dessus du sol de la nef et reposant sur huit piliers élevés au dessus de quatre colonnes au galbe étonnant évoquant d'énormes champignons sous tendus par des pieux. A l'intérieur l'effet est saisissant car le béton est le matériau dominant mais le jeu des lignes contraires parvient à rompre la monotonie et la coupole semble véritablement suspendue. La nef mesure 52 mètres de long sur 35 mètres de large. A l'entrée de la nef on peut voir de petites orgues offertes par la paroisse de Boufarik en face desquelles on remarquera une mosaïque datant de 324, provenant de la première basilique de Castellum Tingitanum (Chlef) et symbolisant l'église sous forme d'un labyrinthe où l'on y lit "Sacta eglisia". L'autel est un monolithe en marbre de Carrare abritant les reliques des saints africains Victor et Fulgence. Les vitraux longent l'édifice en donnant l'impression de le scinder en deux parties et représentent de gauche à droite: la main de Dieu au buisson ardent; l'agneau de Dieu au cœur rouge; le poisson; la colombe du St Esprit; le Sacré-Cœur de Jésus.
