Size (HxW) : 41x51 cm

Style : realism / Tech. : Acrylic on canvas

Theme : Character / People / Category : Painting

Price : $ 600

Year : 2001

Desc. : In a cool and loud sliver of a bar, the blues is played and lived ...and this bluesman pulls out his harmonica and lays down the whine and horn that can only be heard from someone who knows the blues, and that means he lives the blues. Its not just a type of music that can be picked up and played, because it has to be lived, and that is a lonely, hard road for anyone....the blues isnt a music as much as it is a state of mind. We have all been there, but most of us has been able to crawl out...the true bluesman will take his to the grave.

Theme : Mindscapes / Category : Painting

Sold

Year : 1971

Desc. : This is a painting of mine that is from 1971, I was 15 years old. This was brought back to me after all these years. I find it amusing that my style then, was less perfection and what appears to be a reluctance in applying the paint to the canvas. Even then, I was working with a variance of monochrome colors and was just then beginning to experiment with how shadows and perspective plays a roll in a painting. Where ever this painting was hung, it looked like the gun barrel was looking right at you, and was so disturbing that it went into an early retirement until it was uncovered last year when the house was sold.
